

A Case Study
On A Slope

Project Details

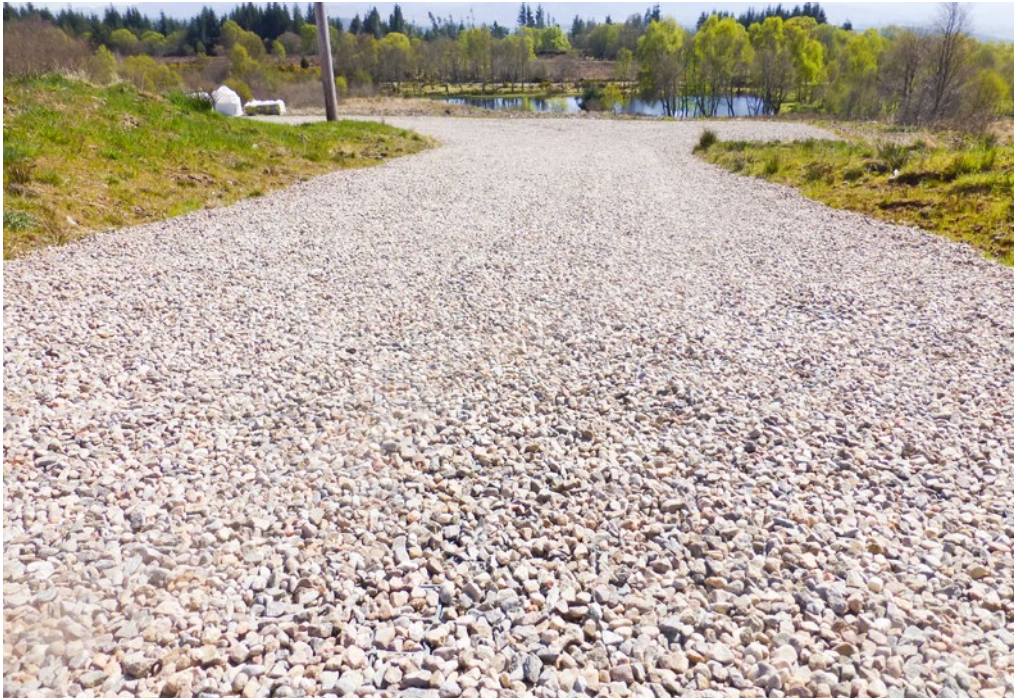

A sloping access road

Client Details

Mr Ian Jones (Private home owner)

Contractor Details

Findlay Muir (EcoGrid approved installer in Scotland)

This is an installation in Scotland where a request was made from the contractor for a light grey grid system that would retain gravel on a sloping access road. The client's specific request was not to see the grid when filled. As you can see from the image, the grid has done the job and the client expressed his delight stating: "The grid certainly is both robust and flexible with no installation difficulties. It is also doing an excellent job of keeping the gravel where it should be on a sloping track."

